THAT RECEPTION TO ALGER Pennsylvania Avenue and Seventh Street.

The Scope of the Fur Sale.

We found that by placing an order early we could control Furs and skilled labor at very great concessions on prices that must prevail "in season." No matter how well filled the purse, true economy has an influence none can resist. So knowing that the coming winter is to be "fur winter," offerings like these would be appreciated fully at this time. We chose the Vancouver Fur Co.'s output, for it is a conscientious company—favored with unusual facilities—controlling the most expert handlers of Furs in America—getting from it a guarantee that we could safely back with our own. The styles may be relied upon-the qualities may be accepted with confidence-and the prices tell how really bargainfied the sale is.

Final Reductions in Ladies' Wash Dresses. The middle of August has several weeks of wash goods wearable weather before it. But our attention must be directed to preparations for fall-therefore we have put these "sure-selling" prices on what remain of our fine White and Fancy Organdies, Dimities, Batistes, etc. Lower prices than have yet been quoted-or that will be quoted-for our clearance determination is born of thirty odd years of precedents. They are all dainty and desirable costumeswere specially made to our order, and have not been duplicated by

We are viewing as Remnants now most everything that remains of the summer stock-regardless of whether it is broken in size, or small in quantity. In that light most everything has been given a "remnant price." You know what that means here.

It Was Rather Insignificant as a Political Incident.

Gov. Pingree the Moving Spirit-His Speech Afforded Satisfaction to Senator McMillan's Friends.

Special Correspondence of The Evening Star. DETROIT, Mich., August 8, 1809. The reception and welcome home extended General Alger was a pleasing and very graceful tribute to the distinguished fellow-citizen returning, but as a function of state importance or of any particular political significance it was a distinct and positive disappointment. When the anpouncement was received here that General Alger had retired from the cabinet the reception was proposed as an evidence of Michigan's continued confidence in him The father of the reception idea was Gov. Pingree, and with characteristic promptitude and energy he called in the representatives of his machine and started the plans and arrangements. Railroad Com-missioner Osborne, Insurance Commission-er Campbell, Labor Commissioner Cox, Oil Inspector Judson, many of the board mem-bers appointed by Pingree and the entire military force, staff and file, were put to military force, staff and file, were put to work, with instructions to spare neither time nor effort to make the function a success. The democrats were invited to participate, and Mayor Maybury, one of the shrewdest politicians of the democratic faith in Michigan, cheerfully swung the municipal machine into line to help the movement along. The federal wing of the republican party, seeing the drift of things and apprehending that the reception would be made an anti-administration demonstration, demanded a representative in the proceedings, and the demand was so earnestly tion, demanded a representative in the proceedings, and the demand was so earnestly made it could not be denied. And then the reception became non-partisan—on paper. Inasmuch as the chief reason ascribed for General Alger's retirement from the cabinet was his alliance with Governor Pingree as originally planned the reception was as much a vindication for Governor Pingree as a welcome for Alger, but the federal machine adroitly turned their purfederal machine adroitly turned their pur-pose, and it was to be a state affair instead of purely local.

Reception Widely Advertised.

It was widely advertised. Reduced rates were secured on the railroads and the promise was made it would be the most brilliant affair of the kind Michigan had ever seen. The non-partisan nature of the function was emphasized. The first incident in the reception was the trip of a reception committee of citizens to Toledo by special train to meet General Alger there and escort him home. The committee on arrangements provided free badges and transportation for pretty nearly everybody who wanted to go along, and about 400 went. In this reception committee was Governor Playree and his enmittee was Governor Playree and his enmittee was Governor Pingree and his en-tire official and military family. There were nearly as many democrats as Pin-greeites. Custom Collector Rich, Revenue Collector Wright and several anti-Pingree members of the legislature were the chief representatives of the federal machine. When the excursion met General Alger in Toledo the usual hailing cry: "What's the Toledo the usual hailing cry: "What's the matter with Alger?" was sounded, and General Alger responded by going through the train to personally shake hands with each member of the blg party. The depot bere was prettily decorated in honor of his coming; but after General Alger had passed the depot gate the decorations that ed the depot gate the decorations that greeted his eye were not profuse. It is true 5,000 lithographed portraits of himself had 5,000 lithographed portraits of himself had been distributed, and these looked out from nearly every store window. But the flag and bunting display was very modest, and there were no triumphal arches anywhere in sight. The parade which followed the arrival was perfunctory, and, including the militia, the bands, the city firemen, the Grand Army posts and the mail carriers, it had a numerical strength of probably 1,500. The crowds on the street, though the factories and stores had just closed, were not so large as an average circus would call tories and stores had just closed, were not so large as an average circus would call out, and the crowd that surrounded the reviewing stand when the speaking began did not begin to compare with that which greeted Bryan three years ago.

The Speeches of Welcome.

Governor Pingree and Mayor Maybury, the federal machine having no part in the oratorical part of the program, and General Alger responded.

Whether or not the reception will induce General Alger to enter the senatorial race in earnest remains to be seen. Since his return he has refused to discuss this quesreturn ne has refused to discuss this ques-tion. He will canvass the situation anew, consult with his friends in different parts of the state, hold councils of war, have es-timates made of the expense and in due time will announce the conclusion he has reached. He has a number of friends who are willing to help hack him financially in reached. He has a number of friends who are willing to help back him financially in his campaign should he enter, and they are urging him to go in. He has an advantage over Senator McMillan in that he has many more personal friends in the state; but Mc-Millan has a thoroughly organized and very mooth working machine at his back, and he has not Pingree to carry as a handlap. The speech that Pingree made at the recep-tion gave the McMillanites much satisfaction, and they will make use of it as an anti-Alger document when the campaign

STORAGE HOUSE DAMAGED.

Building Occupied by U. S. Electric Lighting Company.

A quick, hot fire badly damaged the fourstory brick building at 213, 215 and 217 14th street northwest last night, shortly after 12 clock. The building was used as a store house by the United States Electric Lighting Company. The offices of the company are located in the southwest corner of the structure. The damage will reach into thousands of dollars, although it was given out this morning that no definite statement could be made as to the extent of the loss. Two large and expensive storage batteries were in the burned building. Not until these have been examined can the damage be accurately placed. It is believed, how ever, the batteries are not seriously harmed.

The fire originated in a lot of oil-soaked waste and rubbish in the rear of the building. A lantern was overturned by one of the workmen employed by the company. The flames leaped up the rear of the building, soon found their way inside and were roaring flercely from the front and rear windows of the two upper floors when the first firemen arrived upon the scene. Two alarms brought out all of the fire apparatus in the center of the city. Chief Parris directed the battle. Once water was turned on the fire succumbed speedily. seat of the conflagration was easily reached and as the material which fed the flames was loosely packed there was little difficulty in quenching what at one time seem-ed to be a very dangerous fire. The offices of the company were slightly damaged by smoke and water.

The structure damaged lies just north of the magnificent new central plant recently completed, the store house being separated from the main building by a wide alley. The power house was, however, in no danger. The damage to the building is quite extensive that to the contents not so great. extensive, that to the contents not so great A lot of old wires, cables, coils and electric apparatus was destroyed.

apparatus was destroyed.

The fire spread rapidly, and, notwithstanding the proximity of engine houses, it was many minutes before a stream was playing upon it, this delay being due to the playing upon it, this deay being due to the impossibility of earlier securing a full head of steam in the fire engines. Once the firemen were fairly at work, their labors were deserving of the highest praise.

Charged With Pension Frauds. Lights of Warning Asked For.

I wish to call the attention of the people to a matter which, in my opinion, should have instant attention. As every one knows,

the horse cars which now operate on 11th street will soon be a thing of the past. But because of their speedy abolishment, should great holes be allowed to stand in the tracks without even so much as a red light to warn people of their existence? I think

nearly every one will agree with me in saying a most emphatic "No." In many places

there are holes from one to two feet deep,

and these same holes have been the cause and these same holes have been the cause of many an accident. Only last evening as I was passing 11th and R, where one of these holes exists, a party of young people went by on their wheels. One of the young gentlemen spied the hole just in time to save himself, but the young lady, who was actionally behind him and who was extigntly behind him and who was extigntly behind him and who was extigntly directly behind him, and who was evidently following his lead, had no time to turn away, but ran into the hole and was thrown with great violence from her wheel right in two feet of dirty, muddy water. She said she was not hurt at all, but even if she wasn't, her clothes were one mass of dire and muddy water. This is only one case of a number, and I think something should be done and done at once. It may not be advisable to repair the numerous holes in the tracks, as they are to be used such a short time, but the compains should be compelled to place lights at all such holes and held responsible for all accidents resulting there-

IN CASES OF SUNSTROKE. A Prescription That Came All the

Way From Uruguay. Mr. Jose da S. Marquez, Orillas del Plata No. 16, Montevideo, Uruguay, the 8th of last June addressed a letter to President McKinley, inclosing a prescription used by him with great success in the treatment of persons suffering from sunstroke. The President referred the communication to the Secretary of State, and, as Mr. Marquez stated that he has learned from the newspapers (of Montevideo, probably) that there have been a number of cases of sunstroke

here, the Secretary forwarded the prescription to the District Commissioners. As translated, it reads as follows:

"Wet a towel or sponge, preferably with spring or running water, or, if still water, it should be very clear, and with it wet the hands, face, head and chest, to cool the blood; then pour water over the shoulders until it runs over the whole body. Having without drying the face and head, and without rubbing the spinal column. Double a small cotton sheet, that has been used, lengthwise, wetting two-thirds of it so that there may be sufficient for two windings around the body with the wet sheet and one dry winding.

"The wet sheet before being wrapped around the body must be squeezed out so that scarcely any dampness shall remain, and then wrapped around under the arms, covering the stomach, abdomen and par of the chest, heart, below the hips and a part of the thighs, and with the third part of the sheet, which must be dry, cover the two dry windings well. "By way of a hygienic measure, a glass of water, very fresh and clear, may be drunk, then the patient may walk a little. "This operation may be repeated twice a day, morning and evening, and the bath must always be taken and the bandages put on before every meal, and, if possible, two or three hours after. The eruption around the waist, which usually ensu occasioned by the transpiration, and need occasion no alarm, but is rather a subject of congratulation, only, in continuing the operation, the same cloth or sheet should not be used without being thoroughly washed every time it is used."

> FINED FOR ASSAULT.

Mamie Davis Gives Bond for Appearance at Coprt. Special Correspondence of The Evening Star. KENSINGTON, Md., August 9, 1899.

The trial of Mamie Davis for assault Monday on Watson Eldridge was held at 5:30 o'clock this evening before Justice Massey. Attorney Robert B. Peters of Rockville appeared for the accused. It developed on trial that some bantering had been going on between the two, when the girl seized the nearest missile, an ice pick, and hurled it after the fleeing boy. On learning these facts, and that the boy's injuries are not dangerous, Justice Massey released the accused on $200 bond, to appear at the November term of court. Her bondsmen were John Kelley of Garrett Park and Thomas Henson of Beins Post
